

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE INCARNATION

When we truly believe that God came among us, we are affirming a profound truth.

John Coblentz is a teacher and the campus pastor at Faith Builders. In this article, John presents a brief historical review of the doctrine of the incarnation of Jesus Christ and then reflects on the significance of the belief that in Jesus, God was “manifest in the flesh.”

What does it mean to believe in the Incarnation?

Years ago, I was waiting for some repairs to be done in a local shop, and I struck up a conversation with an elderly man about his faith. “Are you a Christian?” I asked.

“I believe in Immanuel,” he said. “No one else. Just Immanuel.”

“Oh,” I said, “so you believe in Jesus?”

“I believe in Immanuel,” he said, more resolutely than before. “No one else.”

And try as might, I couldn’t get him past that statement of faith. To this day I don’t know if that meant he did or didn’t believe in Jesus.

Matthew is the Gospel writer who explains Jesus’ birth as fulfilling the prophecy in Isaiah that foretold a virgin would give birth to a son who would be called Immanuel—which, Matthew adds, means “God with us” (1:23).

This simple but profound reality—God with us—caused consternation to those who first encountered Jesus of Nazareth. Many people stumbled. How could an obscure man from Galilee, of all places, with dubious origins claim to be the Son of God? Even those who came to believe in Him did not always know how to explain the human-divine oneness in Jesus. Over the first several centuries after the death and resurrection of Jesus, the doctrine of the Incarnation, probably more than any other doctrine, occupied church leaders. People from different backgrounds brought their various understandings of gods and humans, of the spiritual and the material, to bear on their explanation of who Jesus of Nazareth really was and is.

Some focused on His divinity and could not quite believe that God could become human and still be holy and pure. Greek influence especially pushed these people to regard material reality as flawed, even evil; consequently, some explained that God’s Son only appeared to have a body. He could not really have been flesh and blood. The Apostle John addressed this heretical twist decisively: “Every spirit that does not confess that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh is not of God” (1 John 4:3). Denying the real humanity of Jesus cuts at crucial issues of faith which we will explore later.

Other people in those early centuries focused on the humanity of Jesus and could not bring themselves to believe that Jesus was eternal God. All material life has a beginning, they argued. Jesus had a conception and a birth. God lived in Him, they could believe, but since He was human, He was surely somewhere beneath the one true God—a lesser being, the highest of creation, but still creation, not Creator.

Various councils were held as new thinkers, converted philosophers, and strong church leaders brought their understanding to bear upon the issue of God and man in one person. The Apostles’ Creed had this to say about Jesus:

“I believe in God the Father... and in Jesus Christ, His only Son, our Lord: who was conceived of the Holy Spirit, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, died, and was buried. He descended into hell. The third day He arose again from the dead. He ascended into heaven and sits at the right hand of God the Father Almighty, from whence He shall come to judge the living and the dead.”

Notice that this creed focuses mostly on what Jesus did. After a couple of centuries of theological tug of war, when the Arian heresy¹ threatened to unravel the strong cord of orthodoxy, church leaders wove new wording into the Nicene Creed, in which they expanded considerably on who Jesus is:

$20,000 TAP SCHOLARSHIP

Faith Builders is accepting applications for two $20,000 scholarships to the two-year Teacher Apprenticing Program. The full cost of tuition, room, and board for the TAP program is around $22,000.

Details and application at www.fbep.org/admissions/scholarships

I believe... in one Lord Jesus Christ, the only-begotten Son of God, begotten of the Father before all worlds; God of God, Light of Light, very God of very God; begotten, not made, being of one substance with the Father, by whom all things were made; who, for us men and for our salvation, came down from heaven, and was incarnate by the Holy Spirit of the Virgin Mary, and was made man." [From there it continues much like the Apostles' Creed.]

The Athanasian Creed, perhaps another two centuries later, expands even more. It begins with the Trinity:

"We worship one God in Trinity, and Trinity in unity; neither confounding the persons, nor dividing the substance. For there is one Person of the Father, another of the Son, and another of the Holy Spirit. But the Godhead of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit is all one, the glory equal, the majesty co-eternal. Such as the Father is, such is the Son and such is the Holy Spirit—the Father uncreated, the Son uncreated, and the Holy Spirit uncreated; the Father incomprehensible, the Son incomprehensible, and the Holy Spirit incomprehensible; the Father eternal, the Son eternal, and the Holy Spirit eternal. And yet they are not three eternals, but one eternal. As also there are not three uncreated nor three incomprehensible, but one uncreated and one incomprehensible..." [The creed continues in this vein for some time, and then specifically addresses the Incarnation.]

"For the right faith is that we believe and confess that our Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is God and man—God of the substance of the Father, begotten before the worlds; and made of the substance of His mother, born in the world; perfect

God and perfect man, of a reasonable soul and human flesh subsisting, equal to the Father as touching His Godhead, and inferior to the Father as touching His manhood. Who, although He is God and man, yet He is not two, but one Christ; one, not by conversion of the Godhead into flesh, but by taking of the manhood into God; one altogether, not by the confusion of substance, but by unity of person. For as the reasonable soul and flesh is one man, so God and man is one Christ; who suffered for our salvation..." [And here it continues with what Jesus did for us, using wording similar to the Apostles' Creed].

Much of our present understanding of Jesus rests upon this hard work of early leaders, guarding the true understanding against false beliefs.

And why, we may ask, is it so important to know and believe that in Jesus, God was "manifest in the flesh"? Here are a number of reflections on this great mystery:

1. The Incarnation demonstrates the love of God that "passes all understanding." That God should love the world of humanity, not because we are so loveable, not because of anything we deserved, not because we asked Him or sought for Him, but because He is God and God is love, and that this love would move Him to become one of us—this is love beyond measure. We can hardly calculate the cost of God's commitment to come among us. Writers and poets and musicians and artists have mused long and tried in countless ways to express the inexpressible love of God as revealed in Jesus of Nazareth. As Jill Carattini states, "Standing over the precipices of the things that matter, nothing matters more than that there is a loving, forgiving, eager God who draws near [italics in original]."²
2. The Incarnation demonstrates the humility of God. Jesus the eternal Son laid aside glory, took on the limitations of humanity, and was born in obscurity, poverty, and hardship even by human standards. The God who is omnipotent became a baby, completely dependent on others for His care. The God who is omniscient and omnipresent took on the limitations of time and space, and had the experience of "growing in wisdom." The eternal glory, so overwhelming that no human can see it and live, took on the veil of flesh, a human form in which there was no outstanding beauty. This "laying aside" way of thinking and living has become the pattern for us. We are to have the "same mind," to think and live in the same way. We do well to stare hard and meditate long at the scene of God's infant Son laid in a feeding trough far from home.

3. The Incarnation validates the material creation and human life in particular. For God to take on "flesh and blood" and become like us, even calling us "brothers and sisters," eating our food, blessing our children, and walking our roads, helps us to see that although the whole creation groans under the curse, still it was made by God and is not evil in itself. We ought therefore to look at food and trees and animals and ecosystems and especially humans with a sense of awe. All this was made by God! He pronounced it good. Physicality and materiality is still sustained by the word of God. Although a rogue system has arisen that is contrary to the righteousness of God—which we now refer to as "the world,"—the truth is that "This is my Father's world!" It belongs to Him. The "god of this world" is an imposter. And with all creation we look for redemption, wherein all things will be made new.

4. The Incarnation marks the beginning of the redemption. Jesus lived among us as the dawn of the new age. The kingdom of God is "at hand," He declared. He came among us as the new Adam. He taught us to live in the righteousness of the new order, although the world system is still operating by its dog-eat-dog and me-first habits of lust and pride. Love, Jesus said, is to be our most outstanding characteristic. Love for God. Love for family. Love for neighbors. Love even for enemies. Jesus touched the lepers. He fed the hungry. He cared for the downtrodden. He ate with sinners. He worked tirelessly to do good, to show compassion, to alleviate suffering, to proclaim the good news of the kingdom of God. And He calls those who believe in Him to follow in His steps. We are to live even now in the ways of the restored system, though it may cost us our lives.

5. The Incarnation assures us that God is present in all that we face. To live in the ways of Jesus in this present system results in tension. Although Jesus' followers participate in His life, receive His Holy Spirit, and thus experience already the beginnings of the new order, we do so in a world not yet redeemed. And

OPEN HOUSE

APRIL 3-4, 2014

You are invited to experience Faith Builders first-hand for one and a half days of classes and activities designed to give a feel for student life. If you are considering study at Faith Builders, this will be an excellent way to understand more about our programs of study.

Email fbep@fbep.org or call to reserve your space.

consequently, we suffer. We constantly face the tensions of living generously in a world given to greed, of meeting injustice with kindness, of helping people who take advantage of our help, of looking for ways to bless those who speak and act disrespectfully to us. Early followers of Jesus took great comfort in knowing that Jesus, because He lived among us, fully understands these struggles and offers His presence and His grace to us. The writer to the Hebrews says Jesus was “made like us” so that He could “become a merciful and faithful High Priest.” He is “touched with the feeling of our infirmities” and “was in all points tempted like as we are,” and because of these human experiences, He “can have compassion on those who are ignorant and going astray.” These realities about Jesus comfort our hearts and assure us that He is fully able to give us exactly what we need in our distresses and trials.

Reflecting further on the Incarnation, Carattini says, “The Incarnation is the only story that touches every pain, every lost hope, every ounce of our guilt, every joy that ever matters. Where other creeds fail, Christmas, in essence, is about coming poor and weary, guilty and famished to the very scene in history where God reached down and touched the world by stepping into it... The great hope of the Incarnation is that God comes for us. God is aware and Christ is present, having come in flesh, and it changes everything [italics in original].”³

The Incarnation is truly a marvel. Jesus was fully man, and Jesus was fully God. So the elderly man who told me, “I believe in Immanuel” was making an amazing confession. God is with us! When we truly believe that God came among us, we are affirming profound truth. With the Apostle Paul, we can exclaim, “Without controversy great is the mystery of godliness: God was manifested in the flesh!” (1 Timothy 3.16).

John Coblentz

Endnotes

¹Arius was an early church leader (250-336) who taught that Jesus was a created entity, subordinate to God, and thus, unlike God, He had a beginning. Arius’s views were rejected as heretical at the Council at Nicaea in 325 AD.

²Carattini, Jill, “Incarnate,” Ravi Zacharias International Ministries, Daily Readings, December 4, 2013.

³Ibid.

ADMINISTRATORS CONFERENCE AND RETREAT

JANUARY 30 - FEBRUARY 1, 2014

The 2014 Administrators Conference will be held at the Antiochian Village Conference and Retreat Center near Ligonier, PA. This retreat center offers walking trails, a bookstore, and other amenities. David Yoder (Dover, DE) and Steven Brubaker (Guys Mills, PA) will speak. David will present three addresses on the care that principals and administrators provide as they relate to their staff, students and parents, and their own families. Steven will lead a work session designed to develop educational leadership.

Apply online at www.fbep.org/acr

HOUSEPARENTS NEEDED

Faith Builders is looking for house parents for this spring, February 17 – May 23, and for next fall, August 20 – May 22, 2015. House parents provide an older, married presence on campus. They interact with students and volunteers through friendships and informal discipleship opportunities. House parents also have the opportunity to be involved in service jobs and other activities on campus as they are able. House parents are preferably over 62, enjoy and do well with people, and have leadership experience.

Contact Brandon Mullet at brandonm@fbep.org or (814) 789-4518 ext. 118

NEWS FROM FAITH BUILDERS

BIRTHS

- » Merlin & Amy (Gingerich) Troyer, 1st child and son, Kennedy Shante, May 5
- » Kevin and Holly King, 1st child and son, Elijah Kade, May 18
- » Gerald and Grace Eicher, 4th child, 2nd daughter, Karissa Denae, September 6
- » Paul and Thelma (Good) Hurst, 1st child and son, Tristin Lee born August 19, 2010; adopted April 24
- » Mark and Alana Yoder, 1st child and daughter, Tirzah Kate, October 3
- » Shane and Dorcas Iwashige, 2nd child and son, Carson Dale, August 24
- » Jeffrey and Rachel (Shank) Kanagy, 2nd child, 1st daughter, Heidi Annette, August 7
- » Lonnie and Shannon Kauffman, 1st child and son, Brock Davis, May 17
- » Josh and April Coblentz, 1st child and son, Jackson Eli, October 13
- » Kendall and Janelle Myers, 2nd daughter, 3rd child, Karina Shalom, October 23
- » Matthew and Tamar Zehr, 2nd child 1st daughter, Tianna Charlotte, October 10

- » Javan and Melody Bender, 2nd child 1st daughter, Alyssa Brooke, June 28
- » Nathan and Ruthie Fisher, 4th child 2nd daughter, Liana Grace, August 29
- » Henry and Dorothy Miller, 2nd child 1st son, Landon Cole, September 11
- » Phil and Lisa (Hoover) Miller, 7th child, 6th daughter, Emma Elizabeth, October 31
- » Joe and Crystal Miller, 4th child, 2nd daughter, Lana Violet October 27
- » David and Joy (Ebersole) Musselman, 2nd child, 2nd son, Kendrick Dayne October 29

ENGAGEMENT

- » James Swartz and Kathryn Rohrer

MARRIAGES

- » Daniel Fisher and Susan Lapp, April 12
- » Arlyn Kauffman and Sue Wagler, May 25

DEATHS

- » Anja Miller, 18, vehicle accident. Sister to John Miller, a 2013 graduate.
- » Clyde and Mary (Naomi) Lehman, parents of Melvin Lehman

TWO YEARS OF STUDY AT FB FALL SEMESTER BEGINS AUGUST 25

Students at Faith Builders are equipped for the classroom, further education, or life-long ministry in our two-year programs of study. The class of 2016 is forming now.

Read more at www.fbep.org/admissions

FAITH BUILDERS EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS

28527 Guys Mills Road
Guys Mills, PA 16327

Non Profit Org
US Postage
PAID
Erie, PA
Permit # 227

Address Service Requested

Discipling the head, heart, and hands

INVESTING IN THE NEXT GENERATION

Faith Builders depends on the generous financial support of many people for its continuing ability to equip the next generation for service. It is particularly encouraging when individuals, couples, families, and churches decide to make regular contributions to the work, regardless of the size of the contribution. As we begin 2014, please consider joining the people who make monthly, quarterly, or annual pledges. We accept pledge donations through direct debit, online payments, or checks.

To respond, use the enclosed envelope or email fbep@fbep.org

UPCOMING EVENTS & TERMS

WINTER TERM | JANUARY 6 - FEBRUARY 7

Winter Term includes one to five weeks of study in Bible, Theology, Music, and Business.

ADMINISTRATORS CONFERENCE & RETREAT | JANUARY 30 - FEBRUARY 1

This weekend event helps school administrators build vision for their schools and become effective leaders. More on p. 673.

SPRING SEMESTER BEGINS | FEBRUARY 18

The Spring Semester is a time of dedicated study, personal development, and applied practice.

OPEN HOUSE | APRIL 3-4

More on p. 672.

SUMMER TERM | JULY 30 - AUGUST 1

Summer Term offers educators an opportunity for study and fellowship. The Summer Term brochure will be available soon.

COLLEGE STUDENT SEMINAR & RETREAT | JULY 4 - 6

Contact us

- By Phone (814) 789-4518
- By Fax (814) 789-3396
- By E-mail fbep@fbep.org
- By Mail 28527 Guys Mills Rd
Guys Mills, PA 16327

Visit us on the web at www.fbep.org